

The Jewish Religion and the Holocaust

Dr. David Deutsch
davidd4@gmail.com

Course outline:

Wednesday, July- August, 13:00-16:00

The course explores issues of Jewish observance and religion in relation to the Holocaust from different perspectives:

- (A) The impact of Nazi Rule on Jewish religious practice and community
- (B) The challenges and theological shifts during the Holocaust period
- (C) The post war era and the religious response to the Holocaust
- (D) The Christian world and the Holocaust

Course requirements:

1. Readings: Lectures are based on reading assignments of academic paper/s, book chapters and/or source material and will include an active discussion of the material. (30% of the final grade)
2. Response papers: Students are required to prepare two response papers based on the reading material (700-1000 words). An oral presentation in class is acceptable. (30% of the final grade)
3. Final assignment: A paper based on primary and secondary resources from at least three sessions (44approx. 5 pages). The paper will primarily address the discussions and issues raised in the course. Students are required to submit a brief research proposal for the final assignment prior to August 15th (one page). Only approved proposals will be graded. (40% of the final grade)

(Alternatively, for the final assignment, students can write a term paper- referat (10-15 pages) or a seminar paper (25-30 pages). As explained above, an initial research proposal is required by August 15th)

In addition to the syllabus, students will be expected to read and analyze several important documents and short clips that were translated to English from Hebrew, Yiddish and German
